

MCHalert

Leveraging Learning
to Leadership

National Center for Education
in Maternal and Child Health

The MCHalert has been distributed by the National Center for Education in Maternal and Child Health (NCEMCH) since 1998 under various funding streams and in support of numerous federal initiatives – with a consistent goal of providing access to new resources, training materials, and program developments.

We have heard from many of our 8,000 subscribers (and secondary distribution of over 40,000) that this is a critical means of communication for the MCH community, so we are excited to continue the MCHalert in support of current MCHB-funded projects at NCEMCH.

The MCHalert is a free quarterly electronic newsletter that provides quick access to resources in five areas:

01 From the Field
Explore the latest trainings and resources

From the Field showcases the latest trainings gathered by the MCH Navigator and resources collected by the MCH Digital Library.

02 New from NCEMCH
Find out what's new from our team

New from NCEMCH introduces new resources developed by the National Center for Education in MCH (NCEMCH) for immediate use in your daily work or research.

03 What Works
Learn from the emerging evidence base

What Works highlights evidence-linked resources from the MCH Evidence Center to ensure that your programs have impact with the communities you serve.

04 Advancing Academics
Access resources for teaching and learning

Advancing Academics provides the latest news and resources from the Association of Teachers in MCH (ATMCH) for student and current/emerging teachers of MCH.

05 Leveraging Learning
Translate knowledge to implementation

Leveraging Learning shares implementation resources from the National MCH Workforce Development Center that lead to real-time impact & advance health equity.
